

Dear Friends,

The IGBC Coffee Table Book Volume III is a proud achievement for us and we are happy to present this compilation to the building design and construction industry. With more than 100 projects from across India, the sustainable approach has been adapted and executed successfully by buildings, public spaces, infrastructure projects and even cities to overcome the challenges of climate change that we face today. The expansion of green from buildings to large-scale projects is a step further towards accomplishing an energy efficient, cost-effective built environment.

From using traditional sustainable methods to latest state of the art technologies, it's not only in the growing number of projects that are being built, but also a significant number of projects that are adopting a matured approach towards green design from the concept stage itself that showcase our country's tireless efforts of taking up green initiatives.

This green movement in India is attributed to the prudent efforts of advocates and pioneering leaders of sustainability. We remember Dr. P C Jain, one such crusader of the green movement, who left for heavenly abode earlier this year, leaving behind a legacy that inspires and encourages the young minds to embrace green design in all forms of the built environment.

Keeping Dr. Jain's memory alive, we would continue our efforts and push the momentum of the green movement in India.

With this book we intend to reach out to a wide audience to contribute to a sustainable tomorrow for our future generations.

The efforts of everyone who has contributed to this book are commendable and this publication would not have been possible without the efficient, diligent hard work put in by the entire team. I congratulate and applaud the team work that went behind putting this volume and wish every reader a great learning experience as they go over the showcased projects.

Regards,

Jayesh Hariyani
